Making a difference - volunteering

Help Other People by Volunteering

My presentation today is about volunteering. I am going to divide this talk into three parts. First, I will mention the personal qualities you need to be a volunteer. Then, I will enumerate the different reasons for you to start volunteering. Finally, I will present a few suggestions to help you to find volunteering opportunities.

To start with, I would like to say that anyone can volunteer. All you need are motivation, compassion and the willingness to work and learn from the people in the community. I am sure most of you have these qualities.

Moving on now to the reasons for volunteering, I can say that there are many reasons why people decide to volunteer, usually to give something back to society and make a difference in the lives of others. No matter when you decide to volunteer, or what you decide to do, it will bring you countless benefits. And by doing it you will be making a real difference in the lives of individuals, the community and the environment. You will have the chance to meet new people, while raising your social awareness. A volunteering experience can also benefit your professional career, as you will develop and learn new social, technical, team-building and problem-solving skills.

Lastly, one of the hardest parts of volunteering can be finding a volunteering opportunity that fits your personality. You can start looking in your local area until you find a volunteer position that works for you.

If you want to join the growing number of young people who volunteer in Europe and across the world, visit these sites:

I want to finish my presentation with this memorable sentence:

“The beauty of volunteering lies in the fact that when you give, you receive so much more in return”.

A. Answer these questions:

1. Do you agree that anyone can volunteer? State your reasons.

2. In your opinion, why are compassion and willingness to work needed qualities to be a volunteer?

3. In what ways can a volunteering experience benefit your professional career?

B. You are going to make a short presentation to a group of friends about a volunteering project you know about. You want to motivate them to be volunteers. Use these guidelines to help you:
